Checklist: the 10 tasks to automate first

Spot in 15 minutes what costs you the most time.

This checklist helps you choose where to start. For each task, score from 1 to 5: how often it happens, the time it takes and the risk of forgetting it. Add them up: the highest totals come first.

The 10 candidates

Task	Frequency (1 to 5)	Time spent (1 to 5)	Risk of forgetting (1 to 5)	Total
Welcoming a new client or team member (documents, access, message)
Following up a quote with no answer
Following up a late invoice
Sorting incoming emails and requests
Qualifying requests received by form
Compiling a report every week
Writing meeting notes
Scheduling appointments
Publishing and scheduling content
Updating the CRM or the database

How to use your score

1. Pick the task with the highest total. It is your first automation.
2. Describe it step by step, as if you were explaining it to someone. Each step becomes an action in the automation.
3. Set it up, then measure the time saved for 2 weeks before moving on to the next one.

A simple rule

One automation that works beats five half-finished ones. Start small, and keep a human wherever judgement is needed.
